

THIRD CHANCE TO BE MADE IN MERCER BOARD

Resignation of Sheriff Haevischer
Probably Will Necessitate
New Appointment

AUTOMATIC APPEALS TO BE GIVEN CONSIDERATION

Registrants Not Through Until District Commission Has Investigated Cases

The resignation of Sheriff William Haevischer, to take effect October 1, probably will result in another change in the Mercer county local exemption board, which already has undergone two changes, one on recommendation of the board itself, and a second when Governor Frazier removed County Auditor Carl Semmler for alleged pro-German tendencies. Judge Luther E. Birdzell, chairman of the district exemption board, was not prepared to state this morning whether an immediate change would be made in the personnel of the board through the sheriff's resignation, and Governor Frazier, with whom a decision, or recommendation, will largely rest, was in Fargo.

Appeals Considered.
Registrants who are congratulating themselves upon having got by the local board with dependency claims, should defer their celebration until the district board has had time to consider their case. Every exemption granted by the local board on dependency claims is automatically appealed by the government to the district board. Interested parties furnish the board with special information on cases where they feel the local board has been unduly lenient or partial, and until the district board has approved the action of the local board, the registrant still stands a chance of being called.

Board on Job Again.
The full membership of the district board was on the job again this afternoon after two days' respite. Excellent progress is being made with the work, and the board soon will have decided all industrial and occupational claims coming to its original jurisdiction on the second call of registrants. Next week, the board will consider appeals from adverse rulings of the district board, and finally all of the exemption allowances which the government has automatically appealed from the local boards.

Dickinson, N. D., Sept. 17.—Pinned beneath a blazing automobile, Ralph D. Heaton passed through some terrible moments before he succeeded in extricating himself from the wreckage of his big six. He then fell unconscious at the side of the burning wreck, where he was found by Senator M. L. McFriede, attracted to the scene by the explosion of the gasoline tank, which scattered blazing gas for a distance of 50 feet and started a prairie fire which was extinguished with difficulty. The car overturned while Heaton was driving between Dickinson and Belfield.

KERENSKY HEADS SLAV REPUBLIC; ORDER RESTORED

Minister and President Is New Title of Russia's Dictator

SOLDIERS AND WORKMEN APPROVE LATEST ACTION

Petrograd, Sept. 17.—Russia has been proclaimed a republic. The provisional government tonight issued the proclamation, dated Sept. 14, as follows:

"General Korniloff's rebellion has been quelled, but great is the confusion caused thereby, and again great is the danger threatening the fate of the fatherland and its freedom. Holding it necessary to put an end to the external indefiniteness of the state's organization, remembering the unanimous and rapturous approval of the republican idea expressed at the Moscow state conference, the provisional government declares that the constitutional principle, according to which the Russian state is ruled, is a republican organization and it hereby proclaims the Russian republic. (Signed)

"KERENSKY,
"Minister and President.
"YAROVNI,
"Minister of Justice."

The title "minister and president" assigned to Premier Kerensky's signature to the proclamation probably refers to his position as president of the ministry rather than of the republic.

The provisional government today announced that all the affairs of state had been entrusted to five members of the cabinet. The following official communication was issued:

"Pending the definite constitution of a cabinet and in view of the present extraordinary circumstances, all affairs of state have been entrusted to M. Kerensky, M. Terestchenko, minister of foreign affairs, General Verkhovsky, minister of war, Verderf, minister of marine, and M. N. Ilin, minister of posts and telegraphs."

At a plenary session of the Petrograd council of soldiers' and workmen's deputies today, which was attended by soldiers who were absent from the previous meeting, the Maximalist resolutions adopted yesterday putting forward an extremely radical program, were repassed.

The delegates also adopted a resolution setting forth that the tragic situation of the country made necessary the constitution of a strong revolutionary bourgeois element, and announcing they had decided to convene immediately a general conference of representatives of the whole organized democracy for the settlement of the question of constituting a power capable of leading the country until the time the constituent assembly assembled.

The resolution adds that until this conference is summoned the present government will remain in power and the people are called upon to abstain from arbitrary or illegal acts in the meantime. At the close of the sitting, it was announced the conference would be held in Petrograd not later than Sept. 25.

Peasants Also Approve.
The central committee of the executive committee of the council and the executive committee of the peasants' delegates last night voted approval by an overwhelming majority, of Premier Kerensky's latest move, which has distinctly improved the prospects for the survival of the new cabinet of five.

These two organizations represent the nearest thing to a parliament which Russia possesses.

M. Avskentseff, former minister of the interior, appealed to the meeting to help keep the government afloat. He said great dangers were impending, of which one was that Cossacks were marching on Tashitsyn, on the Volga, with the aim of dividing southern Russia from the north and depriving the north of bread. He added: "The provisional government has precise information that the Germans are organizing an expedition in Finland."

TEUTON'S FOREIGN OFFICE WARNS ALL AMBASSADORS

Gronholm, Swedish Charge in Mexico, Cannot Be Located by Government

London, Sept. 17.—Germany has sent a note to Sweden, according to the correspondent at Stockholm of the Central News agency, highly regretting the disagreeable issue raised on account of Sweden's transmitting telegrams for Germany.

Germany says she is obliged to the Swedish government for transmitting the messages, but regrets that her representatives in Argentina should have sent the telegrams in the phraseology they did.

A paper in Stockholm, which printed the announcement that Germany had sent the note to Sweden, says the German government has instructed all its representatives in foreign countries to refuse to accede to any attempt which may be made to force them to reveal to the Swedish government the contents of code messages, which they may submit to it.

CANNOT FIND GRONHOLM.

Stockholm, Sept. 17.—The present whereabouts of Gronholm, the former Swedish charge d'affaires at Mexico City, mentioned in the correspondence recently given out in Washington, as having been employed by the German minister to Mexico, to convey information to the Berlin foreign office, is unknown to the Swedish foreign office. He was placed on the unattached list upon his recall from Mexico last December, and was given no other post. The reason for the recall is not specified.

DEMANDS STRICT NEUTRALITY.

Stockholm, Sept. 17.—At a great liberal meeting, held here today, a resolution by Prof. Eden, leader of the liberal party in the second chamber, was unanimously passed to the effect that the meeting express the deepest regrets that the Swedish foreign office was not in a position to deny the assertion that it had forwarded cipher telegrams in ignorance of their contents, which contents, when revealed, showed the just abhorrence of all Swedes, and that such careless acts could happen.

The resolution vigorously demanded that the government immediately undertake all measures to demonstrate to the Swedish people its determination to maintain absolute neutrality toward all belligerents.

DISORDER SPREADING.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 17.—Railroad strike disorders are spreading. A bridge 50 yards long has been wrecked, tying up two lines and preventing the movement of troop trains. Heavy reinforcements of national troops have been sent to Rosario.

WOMEN REGISTER FOR WAR SERVICE

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 17.—Women of Springfield went to the polls to register for war service today, leading other Illinois cities in the program for war service.

The polls opened at 7 and closed at 9, between which hours all women over 16 years of age are urged to present themselves at their various precincts and to say which of the 177 different tasks they could perform well, if called upon to help win the war.

TWO WHEAT RECORDS ESTABLISHED DURING MINTO FARM HARVEST

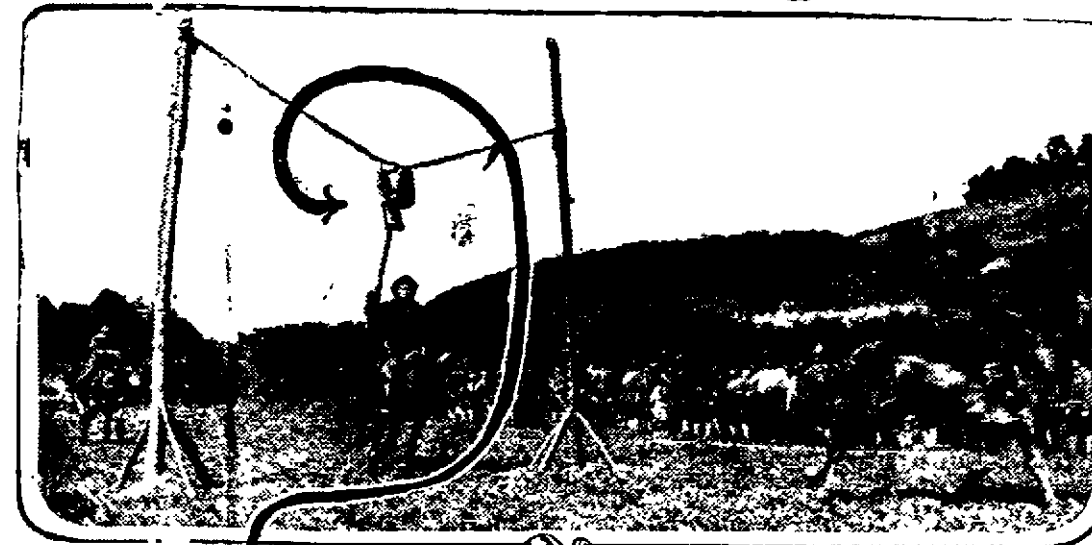

Minto, N. D., Sept. 17.—Two records were established at Valentine Koslowski's farm, when Will O'Keefe's machine threshed 2,100 bushels of wheat and 400 bushels of oats in a half-day, and the yield of 5,000 bushels from a half-section averaged 27½ bushels of prime wheat to the acre.

25,000 METAL WORKERS STRIKE; TIED UP WAR WORK ON COAST

San Francisco, Sept. 17.—25,000 metal and other trade mechanics engaged in emergency war construction here and in bay cities went out on strike at 9 o'clock today following rejection of their demands for a fifty per cent increase in wages. The walk-out in more than 100 plants was carried out without a hitch.

Eleventh hour efforts to avert the strike by employers and representatives of the United States shipping board failed. Proposals to arbitrate were rejected by a committee of the iron trades council on whose authority the strike was declared. The walkout affects more than 150,000 in government ship building and engine construction contracts and automatically ties up other construction work. Settlement of the strike

American Training Camp in France,
Sept. 17.—American infantrymen of the expeditionary army held their first field day today since their landing in France, with George Comeaux, former French premier, as the guest of the army. A battalion of infantrymen gave a demonstration of rifle and bayonet assault, concluding with a genuine athletic program, including tugs of war and boxing bouts.

The entire battalion that participated in the program lunched in the open air. M. Comeaux being the guest of General Sibert and French officers, dining with the American brigadier generals.

In an address to the entire battalion M. Comeaux said: "You have come to France with disinterested motives. You came not because you were compelled to come, but because you wished to come. Your country always professed love and friendship for France. Now you are at home here, and every French house is open to you. You are not like the people of other nations because your motives are devoid of personal interest. You have heard of the hardships before you, but the record of your countrymen proves that you will acquire yourselves nobly, earning the gratitude of France and the world."

VISIT ACADEMY.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 17.—Members of the Russian commission now visiting this country were today guests of honor at the naval academy, which they inspected.

SEE EARLY SETTLEMENT.
Washington, Sept. 17.—Shipping board officials are confident that a basis for settlement of all labor disputes on the Pacific coast shipyards will be reached. The board today made efforts to hasten the settlement of the strike in the Seattle shipyards, in the belief that it will serve as a basis for settlement in Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and other places.

Appointment of a board to investigate the copper mine troubles in Arizona was proposed to President Wilson today. President Campers has had before the President charges of federal investigators that I. W. W. agitators were encouraged by copper producing interests, for the sake of discrediting the labor movement.

Lyon, Daily Tribune's Staff Correspondent With American Troops. Reports on Three Outstanding Features Noticeable as Troops Complete Their Third Month's Training.

By C. C. LYON.

With the American Troops in France (Continued from Page 1), Sept. 17.—The American troops have now had three months' training in France.

What are the big outstanding features?

1. General Pershing is fast developing his forces into a real fighting machine.

2. Young officers from the American training camp schools are making good with a whoop.

3. The enlisted men are showing wonderful aptitude in learning trench warfare methods from their French instructors.

Ideal Combination.
In developing the American troops into a high speed, enthusiastic war machine, Gen. Pershing and Gen. Sibert make an ideal combination.

Sibert is field commander of the first expedition.

Pershing has furnished the iron discipline that was needed by the new army.

Sibert, now affectionately called "Papa" Sibert by his men, has furnished the pats on the back.

Pershing recently visited his troops. Since he went back to Paris there has been a general clicking of heels; officers give their commands with more pep and the men go through their work with more energy and earnestness; there has been a noticeable perk up in personal appearance; and the whole military works have moved more swiftly and smoothly.

Pershing is a commander with a big punch. Nothing escapes his eagle eye. He knows exactly what is needed to put the American army on a par with the French and English.

His methods of illustrating his points are direct and forceful.

In one inspection he espied a private slouching in line, looking at the far-off scenery, totally uninterested in the business at hand.

Pershing brought him up with a jerk.

"Five paces to the front," he commanded.

Hundreds of pairs of eyes were riveted on the private.

"Now," continued Pershing, loud enough for all to hear, "The first requisite of a good soldier is strict attention and a soldierly appearance."

"Face your company. Stand erect like a real soldier for five minutes; eyes to the front."

In other parts of the camp, Pershing repeated the lesson.

You can now bet your last centime that the next time the general comes around there won't be anybody looking at the far-off scenery!

Officers who needed it for similar attention from Pershing.

At one place the commander thought the captain wasn't showing enough pep in leading his men through bayonet exercises.

"Here, give me a gun and let me show you how an officer should lead this drill," Pershing exclaimed.

And for the next ten minutes on-lookers saw something they'll never forget; the chief commander of the American expeditionary forces standing out in a field, lunging and thrusting and countering with gun and bayonet, leading the company through the exercises with all the energy and enthusiasm of an officer 30 years his junior.

The men responded in a manner that pleased the general.

"That's it," he complimented. "Put everything you have into it. Pep and more pep!"

He turned to the captain.

"You can't expect your men to show class unless you show it yourself."

"Papa Sibert is of a different temperament from Pershing but he also is getting fine results."

When Sibert goes on an inspection he's always on the lookout for a chance to praise those men who deserve praise.

"Your men make a fine appearance," he said one day to a company commander whose men were lined up for inspection. "These are the kind of soldiers I like to see."

Since that time the company has entered into being the crack company of the regiment and every other company has perked up and is working its head off to get a similar compliment from "Papa" Sibert.

"ARMED FOR VICTORY" CRY OF ITALIANS

Rome, Sept. 17.—The Popolo Romano, explains that Italy is the last of all war countries that should be effected by food shortage and lack of confidence of the Italian conservative governments, which directed the policy of Sweden during the war period.

"This meeting therefore emphasizes the determination to maintain a correct attitude, which is felt by all the Swedish people. We realize with indignation and humiliation that our good name has been jeopardized by the conduct of a few men. Obviously the nation's fortunes cannot continue in the hands of these few men, who favor such systems and methods."

The principal excuse for the present unrest, being the bread shortage, the newspaper asserts the government intends to issue bread cards on October 11, limiting the consumption individually to one-half pound daily, since the wheat harvest was short ten million quintals.

Evidence of a new attitude of the ministry toward internal disturbances is shown in General Cadorna's message to Milan, this being the first reference by the general on civil affairs since the war began.

"Any weakness behind the lines at this moment will be considered treason. We are all armed now with the will to conquer and victory is at hand. All parties must remember that Italy knows only one way."

Fort Yates, N. D., Sept. 17.—Eight thoroughbreds, trained and ridden by Sioux in the old, native, bareback fashion, will feature the race program of the annual Standing Rock Indian fair to be held here Sept. 27 to 29.

The relay horse races, characteristic of the old days of the pony express, will be the best ever offered by the fair. Secretary Ben White predicts.

Keen competition is promised in all of the broncho busting contests. The best riders of the northwest have entered for the dusty purses hung up by the management, and some extra bad horses have enlisted.

Stockholm, Sept. 17.—The socialist parade today was not particularly imposing because of rain. A banner at the head of the parade bore the motto "down with secret diplomacy." Other banners indicated the parade might be considered as a peace procession as well as an election procession.

The organizing committee of the Stockholm socialist conference, in its report on the question of holding the conference the date for which is said would be fixed as soon as passport difficulties had been settled, after declaring that Stockholm was closely connected with the revolution in Russia, expressed the hope that Russian comrades would close their ranks and depend upon Russian democracy to solve the crisis.

Denounce Counter Revolution.
"Working classes in all countries," he report added, "hall with enthusiasm the Russian emperor's fall and condemn the counter revolutionary efforts."

The committee's report hoped that German and Austrian socialists would protest energetically against projects and tactics tending to weaken the Russian revolution and making Germany an accomplice in the counter-revolution.

Declaring that circumstances prevented the giving of a definite reply for the date of the conference, to various requests, that Austria, Germany, Bohemia, Russia, etc., the committee resolved to continue its activities to collect a lot of documents from adherents and to issue a general report. It decided also to send if the organizations concerned were willing, delegates to the new inter-allied conference.

Chief Speaker.
Hjalmar Branting, the socialist leader, was chief speaker at a meeting which was attended by 15,000 socialists. At the conclusion of the address, the following resolution was passed.

"Events of the last few days show how the lot of mankind is being ruthlessly have misused the confidence of the Swedish conservative governments, which directed the policy of Sweden during the war period."

"This meeting therefore emphasizes the determination to maintain a correct attitude, which is felt by all the Swedish people. We realize with indignation and humiliation that our good name has been jeopardized by the conduct of a few men. Obviously the nation's fortunes cannot continue in the hands of these few men, who favor such systems and methods."

Health Comes First at Camp Sheridan; Sammies Fight Mosquitoes in South

Jungle-Cleaning's Fine Sport for the Soldiers

By EDWARD A. EVANS.
(Staff correspondent.)

Camp Sheridan, Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 17.—Kaiser Wilhelm has an able and efficient ally here at Camp Sheridan.

He's the Alabama mosquito, a vigorous pest comparing well in size and stinging ability with his more famous New Jersey cousin.

I've had one or two brushes with him today and I know he's a tough customer. He's a little fellow, but he's a fighter. He's a little fellow, but he's a fighter. He's a little fellow, but he's a fighter.

But the soldiers here at Camp Sheridan are not afraid of him. They are not afraid of him. They are not afraid of him. They are not afraid of him. They are not afraid of him.

Photographer Dorman and I today found the chief activity at Camp Sheridan so far is toward carrying out his death sentence.

In a swampy jungle of trees and underbrush we found army engineers directing work with axes and chainsaws.

At first the engineers tried using the work, but they proved unpractical, toiling long under the terrible Alabama sun. So cottonfield negroes were hired.

Officers of the army medical corps treat each drainage ditch with crude oil.

This jungle-clearing provides fine sport for the northern soldiers, too. Armed with sticks they stand along the ditches, watching for the deadly water snakes which abound.

Dorman and I heard a yell and saw half a dozen men in khaki jumping about.

The workmen had broken into a rabbits' burrow. Three scared baby bunnies were held as prisoners of war, and Alabama negroes were at hand.

A few minutes later an ugly, black camped here sleep, with a broken wing, hopped out. The soldiers and their numerous dog mascots caught the mosquito just as effectively as they did the bird.

At Camp Sherman, in Ohio, and at Camp Taylor, in Kentucky, we saw the selective service army start training. Here we are seeing more finished soldiers, national guardsmen, many in service along the Mexican border last year.

I asked Maj. Gen. Charles G. Treat, commander at Camp Sheridan, what kind of training is in store for the men at the camp throughout the month.

"Such attention will be paid to marksmanship, he said, as to cutting the large weeds, and a strike to believe marksmanship is of vital importance in this war."

"Soon we'll put the men to digging trenches. Then there'll be bayonet practice and bombing."

"Just now our chief concern is to provide for the health and comfort of the northern soldiers."

Montgomery was the first capital of the confederate states. Confederate veterans, eager to show hospitality, gather at the camp every day in their gray uniforms.

MERCER SHERIFF QUITS JOB WHILE HE IS UNDER FIRE

Resignation of William Haevisher Tendered County Board of Commissioners

Stanton, N. D., Sept. 17.—The resignation of William Haevisher, sheriff of Mercer county, was placed in the hands of the county commission today, to become effective October 1.

An investigation of the conduct of Haevisher's office in connection with the enforcement of the prohibition laws and the statutes prohibiting gambling has been in progress following a raid at Hazen last week, when a large quantity of intoxicating liquor was seized and evidence was obtained.

It is said, indicating that gambling has been more or less freely indulged in.

State's Attorney H. L. Barry announced last week that the resignation of the sheriff might be asked if accusations made against this official were found substantiated.

An appointment to fill the vacancy will be made within the coming week.

Valley City, N. D., Sept. 17.—Dreams of an unlimited amount of power from the strong current of the Sheyenne river were advanced one step nearer realization when Herbert A. Hard, geological engineer and secretary of the North Dakota Reclamation commission advised the Valley City Commercial club that the commissions preliminary work on the Sheyenne had been completed. In making his report he gave much credit to Major Amasa Peake and Mayor Moe of Valley City for making the work possible.

Major Peake, who has had much experience with reclamation projects, accompanied Engineer Hard in locating two possible high dam sites in northern Barnes county. Here the valley contour, states the engineer, affords excellent opportunity for storage, with relatively small damage to any rich farm land. Further north, in Griggs county, and in the southern two-thirds of Barnes, the valley broadens into rich agricultural land.

The river channel through Ransom county and as far north as Valley City affords opportunity about every six miles for small dams 15 to 20 feet high. The channel becomes gradually shallower toward the north, and beyond Valley City the depth is only 10 to 12 feet. In Eddy county the channel is six to eight feet deep, and the river often overflows the narrow valley, which is ½ to ¾ miles wide.

At one time or another four mills have been operated in southern Barnes county. The dam at the Russell-Miller Co. plant in Valley City develops about 75 horsepower. A higher dam could be built, advises Mr. Hard, and is located a little farther from town where the use of water would not interfere with the city supply, the power output, he believes, could be doubled.

Mills were once operated at small dams at Marsh's and at Kathryn, and the Daily dam is still intact, four miles north of Kathryn, where Walker's mill was burned some years ago. This was a successful country mill and would have been rebuilt but for peculiar circumstances attending its burning.

Bake With Heat Now Lost Up the Chimney

This remarkable range takes advantage of Nature's law for heat to rise and thus the High Oven saves and bakes with the "waste or chimney heat" of the common type range. Welcome announcement is made of the coming of Henrietta Crossman, most distinguished of our American actresses, in a new modern light comedy entitled "Erstwhile Susan," to the Auditorium Saturday night, Sept. 22.

The new comedy is from the pen of Marian de Forest, recalled for her "Little Women," and founded on Helen K. Martin's novel, "Farnabetta." The play introduces to the stage an environment at once new and novel and never before used in the theatre.

That of the quaint characterizations and modern life among the Pennsylvania Dutch in their settlements through Pennsylvania. Additional interest attaches to Miss Crossman's present visit, also, since it marks her return to a field in which she excels, that of brilliant, deft, light comedy of the most delightful kind. She is seen as Susan Miller, an effected, posing woman, high-faloot in speech and "individual" in dress, who replies to an advertisement for a wife and finds herself married to Farnaby Dreary, a curly, high-faloot Pennsylvania Dutch man with three grown children.

Susan, despite her airs and graces, gets the upper hand of the unpleasant conditions surrounding her new lot, her efforts reaching a climax when she seizes in surprise and happy fashion the love affair of little Farnabetta, her step-daughter, whom she has learned to love and upon whose happiness she has set her heart. An admirable characteristic of Miss Crossman's charming company in the theatre is that she is now appearing in a new comedy, "Erstwhile Susan," to the Auditorium Saturday night, Sept. 22.

St. Paul Rail Chiefs' Offer to Go to France Rejected by Uncle Samuel

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 17.—George T. Slade, vice president in charge of operation, and John M. Rapelle, general manager, of the Northern Pacific, offered their services supervising railroad war work in France and were refused because of "greater need at home."

This information developed yesterday. Both men were anxious to go to Europe and take part in the war work. But Mr. Slade, a member of the Central department, war board of the American Railway association, was informed that his services at St. Paul would benefit the nation more than in France.

No Changes Desired.

Mr. Rapelle was told the same thing. The government said transportation in the Northwest was vital to the existence of the country and no change in present managements was desired.

A number of other men prominent in railroad life in the Northwest have informed George W. McCree, in charge of recruiting at the Railway building for railroad regiments, that their services were available if needed.

Many Offers Surprise.

"I am surprised at the number of men who desire to help in France," Mr. McCree said. "Executives are as anxious to go as minor employees."

It is noted that this territory has attracted many men that those returning for war service would retain their senior rank on the railroad after their return. This was important to firemen, engineers, and members of train crews, who would have forfeited their standing otherwise and on their return would have had to start at the beginning.

ANNIVERSARY OF CHICAGO FIRE IS PREVENTION DAY

Governor Frazier in Proclamation Calls on State to Swat Blazes Out of Loss Causes

MAJORITY OF CLAIMS CLASSED PREVENTABLE

Governor Frazier today joined with chief executives of the nation over in requesting that October 9, the anniversary of the Chicago fire of the seventies, probably the most disastrous conflagration in American history, be observed as "Fire Prevention Day."

The governor's proclamation says: "Efficiency is the keyword upon which the campaign for production and conservation is being conducted. To be efficient, we must not only produce values, but properly conserve them. Elimination of waste must be brought about. Of these the loss by fire is perhaps the largest single item.

"In peace times, the waste by fire is of grave consequence both to the individuals directly affected and to the people as a whole. In war times this becomes a three-fold menace. It destroys the sorely needed products of our industries; production is lessened through the destruction of factories, and our resources are seriously crippled at a time when the life of the nation is at stake.

North Dakota Losses.
 "A recent analysis of the fire causes in North Dakota shows 33.2 percent to have been strictly preventable; 41.5 percent to have been partly preventable, and 25.3 percent unknown, but probably largely preventable. With these facts in our possession, it is time to institute a new order of things in the keeping down of fires.

"I would like to see the subject of fire prevention so well understood that every child of school age could recognize and criticize irregularities that might lead to conflagration.

"Realizing the gravity of the fire situation and the need of preventive measures, the 9th day of October is hereby designated as Fire Prevention Day, and I recommend that school superintendents and teachers arrange appropriate programs for the observance of that day and suggest that every citizen take an inventory of his conditions about his own premises on that date and remedy any defects and make improvements tending to greater safety from destructive fires."

Programs Suggested.
 Programs outlined for North Dakota schools on Fire Prevention Day include patriotic music, a statement of the reasons for the day's observance, reading of the governor's proclamation, essays on fire prevention, debates to the women, essays on fire hazards and fire drills.

The National Board of Underwriters is cooperating to make the day a success.

RECOVERS POWER OF SPEECH

Joseph Getzelowitz, dumb from birth, suddenly recovered his power of speech in Bellevue hospital, New York, while recovering from a fall.

Several boys had been tormenting Getzelowitz in Henry street, near the home of his sister, where he lived. In chasing the boys, he stumbled and fell. A policeman picked him up and had him sent to Bellevue. There the physicians examined the young Russian and found that his vocal chords had all the appearances of being normal and in their opinion simply lacked the will to talk. While reading a prayer book he suddenly began speaking Yiddish with ease and perfect pronunciation.

He now speaks a few words of English.

STERN PERSHING AND FATHERLY STERN

Siber will visit a company kitchen "What's on the bill of fare for today, cook," he will ask. "Let's try that soup you've got in that kettle. Say, that's fine, isn't it? Good enough for anybody."

Sp. between Pershing's disciplinary methods and Siber's fatherly attitude, the American army in France is coming with a rush to a high state of efficiency.

Now, as to the young officers who prepared themselves in officers' training camps in America.

Already they're called the "Go Get 'em Boys," because they're so full of energy, initiative and enthusiasm.

A high officer paid them a high compliment the other day.

Going to Make Good.

"These young officers are going to make good because they know how to think and act quickly," he said. "They may lack in technical knowledge but they'll acquire that."

"The way these young civilians are taking hold indicates that our new selective draft army is going to be a great success as a fighting machine, because it will contain many thousands of young men who have as much mental equipment as these young officers now on the job."

For the most part, the latter entered the officers' training camps with the first bunch about the middle of May.

Of course, the final success of the American army in France is going to depend, not on the generals who command, but on the enlisted men themselves—the boys who'll "go over the top" and into the German trenches.

Already, the French marvel at the aptitude of the average American private—at his quick wit and his ability to grasp and master new things.

In the hand grenade class the other day the distance became so great that the French instructors thought the Americans couldn't put the grenades over the barriers.

But the American boys, every last one of whom had played baseball since he was knee high to a grasshopper, stepped up and hit the ball's eye with the grenades.

Automatic regulation gives regular and exact heat supply

IDEAL Boilers are designed, built and tested by highest engineering talent. Our engineers will not permit an IDEAL Boiler or AMERICAN Radiator to pass the testing laboratories that does not measure up to the exact scientific requirement as stated in our catalogs. Therefore, when you buy IDEAL heating you start on the right basis to get the utmost amount of heat from the least fuel.

IDEAL-AMERICAN heating saved millions in coal waste last Winter

It is of the greatest importance that you should specify IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators for your new or old building because now more than ever it is necessary to practice the most rigid fuel economy. GENERAL REORGANIZATION.
 Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—General Alexieff's appointment to the supreme command of the Russian army will be followed by a general reorganization, in which old generals will give place to new ones.

First debate news of the reorganization was received at the Russian embassy today in dispatches from Petrograd. Confidence of the troops is being restored by the removal of the former generals, the dispatch says, and the situation is rapidly clearing.

The Korniloff uprising seems to have been quelled without bloodshed, and the Russian officials here say that the government now is stronger than ever. The original trouble might have been avoided, Russians here feel, if the emissaries of Korniloff had been able to explain the situation clearly to the government, and it is believed that a mistake was made in selecting the men to act as go-betweens between Korniloff and the government.

The Cossack movement is not considered serious any longer, though it is not over with.

RUNNING TO COVER.

The best sign that the American people are becoming aroused to the seriousness of the nation's struggle is the hasty effort being made by some of the disloyal elements to get to cover.

Individuals who were most blatant a few weeks ago are now keeping silent or trying to prove that they are not pro-German.

The American union against militarism, an organization, for the most part, of futile Tolstoyan non-resisters, after active participation in every effort to make American yield to the demands of Prussia on the sea and land, failing that, to make the country helpless and to deprive the war of all vigor, has issued a statement threatening to sue anyone who calls it "pro-German." The peevishness displayed by the foolish threat is significant at least of the fact that the directors of the organization have discovered that pro-Germanism is not only unpopular but unpleasant.

The revelations of Russell as to the work of pacifists and traitors from America in Russia have produced a chorus of denunciations and denials, responsibility in the ranks of the Berger-Hillquitt gang of Kaiser-booster socialists.

The galled jade is winning in this case so vigorously that she looks like a cabaret performer doing a contortionist dance.

The dogged contrary baker keeps right on neglecting to deliver our 14-cane loaf of bread for five cents, Mr. Hoover!

GERMANY'S EMPTY LARDER.

Germany is not starving. But Germany is hungry. Procuring a satisfactory meal becomes daily more of a task and less of a possibility.

The masses never know what it is to have their hunger absolutely appeased.

Every hope raised by conquering new territory has been dashed. The conquest of Rumania brought little food to Germany. Grain and other foodstuffs found in Wallachia were largely used in feeding the German armies. The same will be true of the Russian territory overrun by the Kaiser's men.

The question of transportation is serious in Germany. The railroads are breaking down for want of repairs and lack of new rolling stock. If it is impossible for the Germans to keep their present lines in good order, it is even more impossible to find men and materials to build new lines to carry food to the people at home. The railroads are taxed to their full capacity in carrying men and munitions to the fronts and returning wounded and sick men.

So Germany is confronted by the fact that the larder is slowly but surely dwindling. A recent "Jost" printed in a German paper makes this clear. Cards entitling the people to supplies are issued regularly, but often there are no supplies to furnish what the cards call for.

To emphasize this some war issued these "instructions to puzzled cooks": "Take the butter card, stew it down with the meat card, and add the egg card. In a separate saucepan cook the potato and vegetable cards together, and when done add these to the stew. For dessert warm up the potato card, add the milk card, sweeten with the sugar card, and bake with it the bread and biscuit cards. Then wash your hands with the soap card and wipe them dry with the table linen voucher."

Now a people who can print this kind of humor and laugh over it are not yet in dire straits. The starving man does not enjoy jests about his starvation.

It is just as well, therefore, for Germans to steel themselves to the fact that Germany cannot be allowed to submit. She must be so badly, so thoroughly that German wits will be unable to extract humor out of the situation.

The German military machine must be destroyed. The German military leaders and their ruling caste must be toppled from the places of power which make them a standing menace to the peace and order of the world. Only when Germany is no longer a war machine, only when the people really rule and democracy is established there, will it be possible for this country and the allies to lay down their arms and take up once more the ordinary and satisfying tasks of civilization.

The job outlined is a huge one. It will call upon America for all her resources of men, money and materials. But it's a job that has to be done. We have got to break Germany or Germany will break us.

Save now! Save now! The world is going to see the most awful winter since first the dawn of human events was kept.

A FUNNY PEACE TERM.

One of the best German peace terms being talked about in Washington is amusing anyhow. It is the restoration of Belgium and northern France, to be paid for out of the sale of Germany's colonies to Great Britain.

Germany's colonies are very largely Great Britain's now and they are about the poorest investment that any nation could hold, at any time. When Great Britain consents to pay what Germany owes Belgium and France, wake us up! There must be a streak of humor in German autocracy that we haven't noticed.

The suffragets in Occoquan jail lost from six to nine pounds each. The trouble with all these anti-fur remedies is that the cure is worse than the condition.

WAKED ITALY UP.

There are those who stoutly maintain that, in the total, war is not loss but benefit because of increase in conservation, in production and in number of producers. Certain it is that, in respect of at least one of the warring nations, this seems likely to be the case.

Before the war, Italy was almost of no account, industrially. Her war with Turkey, six years ago, had left her trade practically a mass of fragments, and so far as war material was concerned, she was producing practically nothing, having for years depended for her munitions mainly on the Germans. On entering the war she had to start from the beginning, but she had a small but able body of business men and master manufacturers and an enormous, fairly well developed water power.

War put the pep into Italy. Munitions and other factories sprang up in every direction. Over 170,000 men and women are now working, night and day, in her munition factories alone, and her armies are fighting with home made guns, ammunition and other war material. It is a tremendous industrial revolution and, when peace comes, Italy will be one of the producing nations rather than a dependent one.

War seems to make nations produce for themselves, and one cannot help but wonder what would be the industrial effect of war upon such countries as Norway, Sweden, Holland, Spain, Denmark and even Switzerland.

Two 14-year-old Berkeley, Cal., boys have killed a woman because she was "old, very dirty and no good anyhow," and professor of California university are studying the psychology of it. We figure out that when boys go to killing folks because they're dirty, there's a reversal in boys.

Austrian fleet bottled up at Pola and the German "somewhere in Germany," and nobody able to pull the cork! The real quiet thing in war seems to be a fleet that isn't big enough to get out of a bottle.

The Kaiser will be pained to learn that John D. Works has withdrawn from the People's Council for Peace. The blow comes, too, right when Wilhelm was trying to feel cheerful over his capture of Riga.

With Indiana going bone dry, the snakes are fleeing across the state line. Just what the prohibitions have contended would happen all along.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

A Maniac on Board.
The horror with which she looked into my face held me speechless. Could it be possible that she suspected, knew, the perpetrator of this crime—that she sought to shield him?

"You searched the cabin? You found no one?"

"Only Dade sound asleep in the steward's stateroom. I awoke him, and left him on watch below."

"There was no one hiding in any of the staterooms? You tried the doors?"

"They were all empty. Mr. Bascom's door was the only one locked."

"You—you made him open?"

"No; why disturb him?"

"She drew a quick breath, her eyes on my face."

"You—you have not seen Philip Bascom lately?"

"No, not since we had supper together."

"You saw nothing strange then in his actions, or words?"

"Why nothing that I remarked. He seemed about as usual; more haggard, and nervous possibly, but he spoke cheerfully enough. What can you mean?"

"Oh, I do not really know; perhaps I ought not to say such a thing. I meant to have spoken to you about it before, but so much happened, I forgot. I—"

"In—Good heavens! why do you say that?"

"He has talked to me so strangely. He—he frightened me, and I was hardly able to quiet him."

"And you suspect he killed Dubois?"

"Who else could it have been?"

"There was no answer possible. Every other man on board was already accounted for. The truth was borne in upon me irresistibly. I called Legrand

The mate thrust his head over the forward rail.

"Do you know if Masters is in the engine room?"

"I think he is, sir."

"Then call down, and have him send White on deck immediately; and pass the word forward to have Mr. Olson come here."

"Aye, aye, sir; is there anything wrong?"

"I will explain presently; just now I want you to remain in charge of the deck."

Olson arrived first, and I barely had time to tell him briefly what had occurred, when White emerged through the deck opening and reported, his eyes blinking in the bright light, and his face grimy with coal.

"You wanted me, sir?" he asked, with no bluster in the gruff voice.

"Aye, White; you possess the strength and nerve for this sort of job. Miss Carrington here suspects that the owner of this ship has lost his mind. I just found Dubois lying on the cabin deck murdered—"

"Dubois, sir?"

"Yes; he had been stabbed in the back."

"And you believe the owner did it?"

"There is no one else on board who could. He's locked in his stateroom, and we've got to get him out. Come on now, both of you."

I led the way down the stairs in no pleasant frame of mind. An insane man running free aboard, animated by a desire to kill, added to my other responsibilities, increased our dangers manifold. The cabin seemed so dark after the brightness of the deck above, that I grasped the stair rail and advanced almost blindly. I had reached the center of the cabin before my eyes discerned that there were two bodies outstretched on the deck instead of one. I involuntarily shrank back, gripping the sleeve of White's shirt, and pointing.

"Look here! there are two bodies; he—he has gotten Dade also."

The sailor sprang past me, and dropped to his knees.

"Aye, it's Dade, and the poor cuss is done for, sir—it's another knife thrust in the back."

"And no longer any doubt who did it," echoed Olson, "for there's not another man aboard been aft."

"Right you are," I said, gripping myself ready to act. "And we must get him at once. Come on both of you; if there's a fight it may take the three of us. He has a knife, and there was a gun in his drawer."

The door of Bascom's stateroom was closed, and I grasped the knob with no thought it would yield to my fingers.

But it did, and I almost fell forward into the room, catching myself, and staring about. The last gleam of the sun streamed in through the stern ports, and every object within was clearly revealed at a glance. The man was not there. I drew back the curtains concealing the bath, but the space was empty; only one of the round ports was partially open, the aperture far too small to admit the passage of a body. The bed had not been slept in, and was neatly made, and papers were scattered on the rug beneath; a chair was overturned on the deck; a chest in one corner had been rummaged; its contents flung aside. My eyes fell on White, his mouth open, his face glistening in its coating of coal dust.

"Horrified as he didn't get away, sir," he blurted out, "but he never went overboard through that port—a cat couldn't ha' done it."

"No, he's aboard all right," I coincided. "But where? and for what purpose?"

"There is no knowing what he may do next," he could exclaim. "Get a light, White—take the cabin lantern. Olson and I will have to look behind these doors first, and then we'll explore between decks."

We found nothing, not the slightest trace of the fugitive. Beyond doubt he had gone forward, either seeking to escape, or with the thought that he could attain the deck through some opening amidships. I was cool enough by now to realize the peril we faced between decks, searching for the madman, whom we might encounter at any moment.

"Run on deck, White," I ordered, "and pick up a couple of marling spikes. I have a revolver. Tell Mr. Legrand the situation, and have him keep his eyes open. Better have him warn McCann, and Miss Carrington had best remain near the wheel until we get our minds on this fellow. Hurry back now."

Olson and I remained motionless, our eyes on the black opening leading forward, the dim rays of the lantern falling on the ghastly faces of the two dead men outstretched on the deck. It was a gruesome spot, and my heart was beating like a triphammer. I made sure my revolver was loaded, dropping the weapon into a jacket pocket. White rejoined us, grasping the spikes, one of which he passed over to Olson, who tested the weight in his hand.

"Quiet as a June mornin' up there, sir," he announced, squinting about. "There ain't nobody seen nuthin' of no maniac. I reckon yer better let Olson carry the lantern, so you and I can be sartin free to grip the chap; we're bigger than the mate."

"From what I've seen of Olson he'll do his share of the fighting," I answered, knowing the Syvde to be hot-tempered, and touchy about his size. "However, one will have to carry it."

"It's all right, sir," said Olson quietly. "I'll hold the gim, but if that big duffer doesn't stand up to the job, I'll bust glass an' all over his head."

We certainly made a thorough search of it. I doubt if a stray rat got by us without being seen, but from the after-cabin to the engine-room ladder we found no trace of Bascom; no indication even that he had ever passed that way. The effort to locate Bascom's hiding place was absolutely vain—the cunning of the madman overcame our diligence and wit; he had disappeared as though swallowed by the sea, leaving not so much as a clue behind.

Beyond the hole leading to the engine-room below, our advances were blocked by a steel bulkhead, watertight, pierced by a single door, to be sure, but this was closed and locked securely. "Is there any communication between the forecabin and the hold, White?" I asked, staring helplessly at the steel barrier.

"No, sir; the forecabin is all above deck."

"How was this door manipulated? Do either of you know?"

"Well, I had charge o' loadin' the after-hold, sir," and Olson scratched his head trying to remember. "That door never was opened but once, when Captain Hadley tested it before we left Baltimore, or maybe after we got out in the Chesapeake. I think it was opened an' shut from the bridge, Mr. Hollis."

"That is the usual arrangement, but there is a slot here for a key; still the door is steel, and it looks too heavy for any one man to operate."

I leaned over, and looked down into the lighted engine-room at the bottom of the shaft. All I could see was a great wheel steadily turning.

"Masters."

The engineer stepped into view, and peered up into the darkness; he appeared burly and shapeless.

"That you, captain?"

"Yes, Bascom, the owner, has gone crazy, and has hidden himself somewhere on board."

"Well, I'll be swamped! Can't you find him?"

"Not yet; we've searched every place aft. He hasn't visited you?"

"Not to my knowledge. Tony is back in the fire room; I'll ask him."

The three of us clung to the ladder gazing down, the light from the lantern revealing our faces. Masters was not gone a moment, but his voice had changed.

"Tony's killed, sir," he called up excitedly. "He's lying on the coal in number one bunker, cut in the back with a knife."

The words were not out of his mouth before we were scrambling down. But our haste gained us nothing. The only trail Bascom had left was the dead Italian, stretched out in the half empty coal bunker. His lips closed forever. It was a knife thrust which had killed him—just such a thrust as had done for his two mates in the cabin above; but the madman had disappeared. However, here was proof positive that the fellow was still on board; still hiding between decks. He had not reached the open, or flung himself into the sea. Masters could tell us nothing; he had heard no sound, seen no shadow. He had been offing the machinery, and a man could have slipped down the ladder unobserved, and escaped again in the same way. There was no other entrance to the engine room; the forward bulkhead was solid; there were two ventilator shafts, but neither was large enough for the passage of a man's body, and the coal chute was kept closed and locked at sea. Nevertheless I had these examined, determined to take no chances, and our lantern penetrated every inch of the engine room and coal bunkers. At the end, utterly baffled, White gave vent to an oath.

"It beats me, sir," he confessed hoarsely. "Unless it's a spook we're a-buntin' for."

"I wish it was; the trouble is it is a man, and a mighty dangerous one. Well, he's not down here, and he must have gone back by way of the ladder. The fellow has either found some means of getting into the hold, or else he's managed to slip on deck and perhaps is hidden in the forecabin—no one messes there now."

"No, sir."

"Then let's have a look up above; come on, men."

"Yer ain't goin' ter leave me down here all alone, are yer, captain?" questioned Masters anxiously, "with Tony lying dead in there, an' a murderer prowlin' about?"

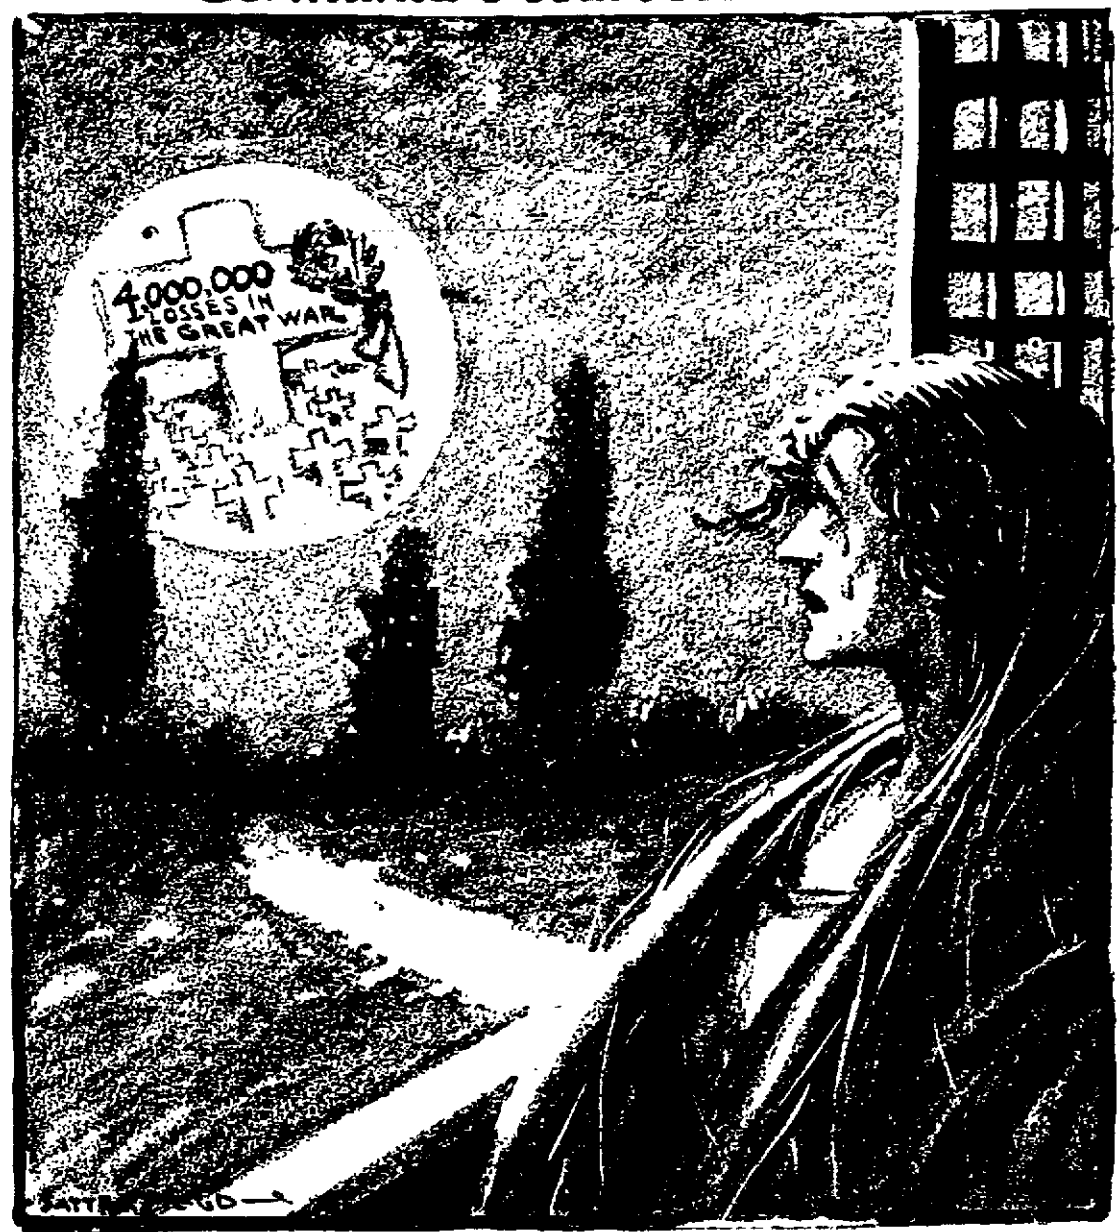

"He'll not be down here again, but I suppose you must have a fireman—White, you better stay."

"Tain't no job I like, sir; I shovelled coal here already for eight hours."

"I'll tackle it, sir," interrupted Olson quietly. "That big boob would throw a fit down here every time he saw a shadow. After you get those batches off send him in on top o' the cargo. There'd be no danger o' his gettin' hurt if Bascom was a hidin' there."

"Yer a dirty liar! I ain't no more afraid than you are!"

Germania's Harvest Moon

"Then why don't you stay here?"

"I'm plumb tired out shovellin'."

"That will do, men," I broke in sternly. "There will be work enough, and maybe fighting enough for both of you. As long as you have volunteered, Olson, you may take a turn down here, and White will go with me. Keep a sharp eye out, you men below."

The two of us clambered up the iron ladder, the sailor with the lantern in his hand, the marling spike thrust into his belt. I tested the bulkhead door again as we came to it, but it seemed as solid as the steel wall itself, and thoroughly satisfied that it had not been opened since the ship sailed, we mounted to the open deck.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES MARK INITIAL APPEARANCE OF CHAPLAIN OF SECOND

Lieut. H. G. Markley of Hamilton Addresses Large Audience in Solemn Religious Service for Soldiers and Drafted Men of Bismarck and Community at Municipal Auditorium—Attractive Musical Program by Harvey Regimental Band.

Impressive ceremonies marked the first public appearance of Lieutenant H. G. Markley, chaplain of the Second Regiment North Dakota infantry, Sunday evening at the Auditorium. Young, clean-cut and enthusiastic over the opportunities his appointment gives him to help "his boys," he made an excellent impression upon the crowd that packed the building to the roof.

Rev. Markley had a Methodist charge at Hamilton, when Governor Frazier selected him for this mission and those who felt the thrill of the young man's earnestness and virility last evening knew that the chief executive had made no mistake in naming him.

Brief and to the point. The sermon was brief, to the point and really was for the boys in khaki who formed a considerable portion of the audience and acted as ushers.

It brought the war home closely to the hearts of the citizens of this mark just as did the service for the drafted men under the direction of Rev. Buzzelle a few weeks ago.

Sacred concert. The services were preceded by an excellent sacred concert given by the Second Regiment band under the direction of Harold Lohman. This band has endeavored to give the people of the capital city a high standard of a great service for this excellent organization. Robert Bruce' cornet solo was one of the features.

Rev. Dr. W. L. Hutchinson, pastor of the McCabe Methodist church, presided at the services. The invocation was given by Rev. Jackson of the Baptist church.

Rev. H. C. Postlethwaite pastor of the Presbyterian church read the scripture and the benediction was given by Rev. Buzzelle pastor of St. George's Episcopal church.

A chorus choir, drawn from the various churches uniting in the service gave two anthems under the able direction of Conrad E. Taylor. Their contribution added greatly to the success of the service.

The offering of $295.00 is to be used to buy bibles for the boys to be used in training camps and at the front.

Chaplain's Sermon. Speaking from the text "We Preach Christ," Rev. Markley said in part:

"We have reached a place in our nation's history when the destructive criticism concerning God, Word must be denounced by God's ministers, and the standard which Christ laid down be made the standard for his followers. It might be well for us to consider a few reasons why it will be our object to preach Christ to the boys that have been placed in our care."

"First, we preach Christ because no other has the power of forgiveness. It is only through the name of Christ that we can receive forgiveness and become converted. Many people imagine that self-reformation is all that is needed, but reformation is not self-reformation. It is a creative act of the Holy Spirit in the heart of man."

Second, we preach Christ because it is as natural for one to confess the intimacy of friendship as for the individual to respond to the warmth of the sunshine and the refreshing power of God's rain. Then too, it is absolutely necessary for us to make a confession of our acceptance of Him and confess our sins to Him. And once we have felt the divine power of forgiveness in our heart, and have the assurance that we have become new creatures in Him, it would be easy to dismiss Niagara falls with tooth picks as to stop to flow of praise and confession of Him as our personal Saviour."

Here the chaplain showed that Christ also stood for restitution.

He told of receiving a letter from a young man in California who had become converted, and wanted to return money which he had stolen from the church offerings. After returning to money the young man wrote and told him how it has eased an outraged conscience and helped him to get a better grasp on God.

In concluding he made it plain that Christ stood for sacrifice and consecration, both of which was the logical result of a life lived with Christ in God. After making an appeal for the parents of the boys to hold them up to God in prayer, and promising to do all he could to lead them to the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the world, and assuring the young men that he was going to help them in every manner possible for their best interests, he closed by showing that the success of Paul's life was due to his close walk with Christ, and his earnest effort to do His will in all things.

SYMPOSIUM ON WORLD WAR BRINGS FORTH INTERESTING VIEWS FROM BISMARCK MEN

Morning Service at First Presbyterian Church Featured by Splendid Sermon from Rev. H. C. Postlethwaite, Who Quotes Leaders in Many Phases of Capital City Life—Prayer, Pluck and Patriotism Prime Requisites Aliteratively Asserts the Press.

The morning service at the First Presbyterian church was featured by a splendid sermon by the pastor, Rev. H. C. Postlethwaite on "Keeping the Home Fires Burning." The sermon was featured by symposiums from representative men of the capital city, who were asked by Rev. Mr. Postlethwaite to give their views on the most important things to be kept constantly in mind during the period of the war that we may give best support of every sort to the boys who fight our battles at the front in behalf of Christian ideals and democracy. As a result in responses were given. They follow:

Army Officer—"Dear Mr. Postlethwaite: To best support the men in the service during the period of the war it occurs to me that the maintenance of ties of friendship and brotherhood as closely as may be will best meet the situation. The feeling that some one at home maintains their interest in the one in service gives a feeling of support and confidence."

Press—"Prayer, pluck and patriotism are prime requisites in keeping the home fires burning. These forces, properly directed, will faithfully discharge the manifold obligations which war imposes upon the home. Give the home circle the driving power of prayer, pluck and patriotism and there must result service whose energizing force will assist mightily our boys at the front in their crusade to make this world safe for democracy."

Judge of Supreme Court—"The thing to be constantly borne in mind is that Russia is like Russia are looking to us for leadership. We show a division in our ranks and a lack of faith they will also. Petty politics here and a show of distrust there may mean retreating armies in Russia and a loss of not merely hundreds of thousands of Russian lives, but of American lives also."

High State Officer—"The personal welfare of our soldier boys is of great importance. Frequent mess ages and the providing of material comforts will maintain standards of living that will be further strengthened by our shouldering the burdens and responsibilities that accompany war."

An Educator—"The world war is being fought to determine whether or not the principle of democracy shall be the heritage and possession of the race in future ages. The life of democracy as a principle government is at stake. All preaching, teaching and living should be devoted to the cause of Christianity, and the larger life which is implied in the term 'Christian democracy.'"

Banker—"The first thing for us to keep constantly in mind is, 'That before we can be of any inspiration or help to the boys and men who are giving themselves to fight our battle, we must see to it that we ourselves are true American patriots, clean, broad minded, sober thinking, generous, loyal men. Every rich man is a lawyer.' The purpose of it all—to make universal and secure the right of the common man to speak in terms of law and authority—an ideal long pursued. If this inspires those at home it will inspire those at the front."

A Business Man—"A business man may be expected to look at the cold business side of this awful war to a certain degree, and when this point of view is taken, his conclusions are eventually the same as every patriotic American. Our boys are fighting our battle and we must stand by them."

A Community Worker—"I feel very sure that if all of us will write the chaplain a kindly letter of loving regard for the home ideals, with the request that he use the letter as an introduction, the home ties will be kept safe."

A Bank Officer—"Wise economy should rule our expenditures in order that the nation's wealth may be mobilized, 'our boys' army maintained, democracy made world safe and victorious peace assured."

Mary Ellen had a new baby brother, and it was her delight to sit in her little bed and hold baby, brother in her arms. Aunt Amy was visiting with her and Mary Ellen, coming in from play, found her holding baby brother. She stood watching her aunt play with the baby for several minutes, then turning to her mother, she said: "I wish brother was twins."

"No Man Can Serve Two Masters" Applicab'e to World Condition Today

Rector of St. George's Takes Sermon on the Mount as Theme for Sunday Discourse—Not Worlds of Idealistic Dreamer.

He Declares

Undivided service was the subject for Rev. George Buzzelle's sermon at St. George's yesterday, the rector using as his theme Christ's oft-quoted words from the sermon on the mount: "No man can serve two masters."

"Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."—St. Matt vi, 33.

"These are hard sayings. It is a strange thing that this wonderful sermon on the mount, the very charter of the church, so beautiful, so sweet and appealing, should seemingly present so many practical difficulties. The world and the church has yet far to travel to reach the ideal of Jesus Christ. Can this ideal be reached, and is it worth reaching? There are those who tell us that these sayings are the words of a dreamer, the visions of an idealist, that in the realm of practical things they can have no place."

"I have every sympathy with honest doubt, but I have no patience with the bizarre mouthings of some upstart who has accidentally stumbled upon some proposition that was presented and exploded fifteen hundred years ago, and who heralds it as some new thing, some splendid evidence of his mental emancipation, and who proceeds to demolish the gospel of Christ at once, never dreaming of the ridicule light in which he places himself. So in the realm of the practical working out of these precepts of our blessed Lord? Do you say they are impossible? I answer that not only are they not impossible, but that they were actually fulfilled by him who gave them to the world. He did seek the kingdom of God and his righteousness, he did serve God, and yet that service never prevented him from living the fullness of life, nay, more, it is only so that this life may be lived or its fullness.

"Granted that these precepts have not become the normal guide of human life, surely the failure of society lived on other lines is self-evident. It may hold up in fair weather, but when the stress of storm comes, it goes to pieces. Society as now organized, with just as little of the gospel in it as possible, is certainly not satisfactory. Social, economic, political, religious conditions are admittedly far from ideal. We seek the world's rest. We spend millions upon secular education to hundreds on religious. We slave for the almighty dollar, and God's acre out on yonder hillside bears the name of many on stone or cross, and perhaps shall soon bear ours. We take thought and build a reputation that some sneak or scoundrel can ruin in a moment by his insidious lies.

"What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul? Serve God or serve man. Each one will pay, but payment is made in the coin of the realm. Service of God may mean to us what it meant to Jesus Christ, even the cross of Calvary, but that throne on the world's highest tree, was but a prelude to the throne eternal. Uplifted on the cross his outstretched arms embraced his kingdom. Co-workers with God, we realize in very truth that all things are ours."

MOST STUNNING WRAP AT BIG RITZ FASHION SHOW

New York, Sept. 17.—Perhaps the most stunning wrap at the Sheldon Loomis fashion show at the Ritz Carlton this week is a slip-over evening coat made of white duvetyon and decorated with Koryak embroidery and gold Oriental colors, designed by Mlle G. Derant de Sumene. This garment slips over the head and has a hood which makes a beautiful collar when it is used as a hood. The sleeves are trimmed with the bottom of a fox. This evening garment is an absolutely original design in America design, and in both originality and taste it is pushing the Paris designers hard.

New York, Sept. 17. A lone walking coat or ulster, while very fall, has been designed by Grand of Paris to give the long lines absolutely necessary to the fall's silhouette.

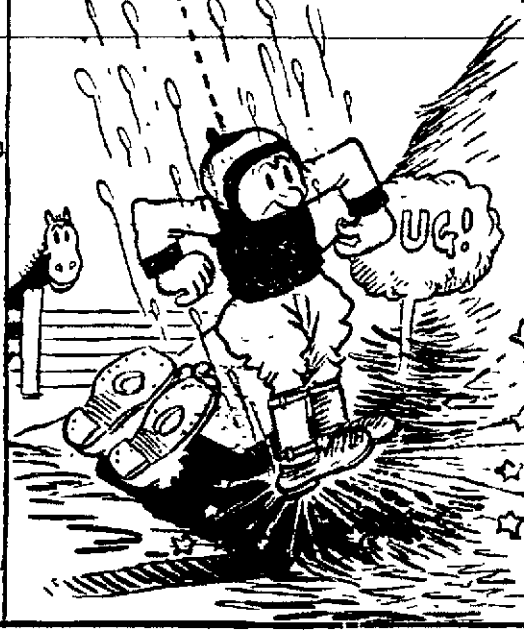

The coat shown at the Ritz Carlton fashion show, is made of midnight blue wool material with an overcoat of white thread and is trimmed with cording of black and white striped velvet.

No young woman who pretends to be up to date will appear upon the street without a fur or sweater stick. It may be expected that a girl who goes in for the fashions will rival her brother in her collection of walking sticks.

THE SERIES BATTING A Comparison of WHITE SOX AND GIANTS

ZIMMERMAN

JACKSON

The first of six articles by Paul Purman, Tribune sport expert, analyzing and comparing the White Sox and Giants as they approach the world series.

By PAUL PURMAN.

In sizing up the relative strength of two ball clubs there are two main fundamentals to be considered, the offensive and defensive strength, with incidentally, their relative bearing on each other.

These may be divided roughly into sub-divisions, the defensive into the pitching and fielding, the latter into the strength of the catching infield and outfield departments.

The offensive strength of a club may be divided into two component parts, the batting, including the style of attack, and the base running.

In this article I will take up the relative batting strength of the two clubs.

Both clubs are tremendous hitting aggregations, each ranking second in its league, but each being far out ahead in real swatting strength of what the averages show on account of ability to hit when hits are needed to make runs.

Taking them man by man, Joe Jackson stands out, in spite of his puny average this year, as the most dangerous slugger of the lot, a tremendous slugger who is likely to hit anything any time. There is no pitcher who can successfully outguess Jackson, for he bats by natural instinct and is as likely to hit one kind of a ball as another.

The Giants have a slugger of the same type in Zimmerman, a powerful, dangerous, natural batter.

There is little to choose from in the attack of the two outfields. Jackson outclasses Robertson. Kauff and Felsch are about evenly matched and George Burns is a much more dangerous man than either Leibold or Shomo Collins.

With the exception of the far corner the White Sox have a trifle the better of the argument in the infield on the offensive, and the edge will be greatly raised if Herzog is unable to play.

Gandil is more consistent with the stick than Holke but his shade is very slight. Collins is more dangerous on attack than Herzog and the brilliant young Risorg. In spite of inexperience is superior to Fletcher. At third Zimmerman is more dangerous than Weaves. McCarty is superior to Schalk in the batting department.

But there is to be considered the method of attack and what the teams can do against the kind of pitching which will be sent against them. McCarty undoubtedly will depend upon his three southpaws, Benton, Schapp and Saltee, to stop the White Sox who have been rather weak against fast hand pitching this year.

What the Sox fear most is the sweeping cross fire of Saltee's delivery.

I will write more of this in my article on the pitching.

All in all in attack the White Sox have a slight advantage, so far as theory and averages go. This advantage is so slight, however, that the least unlooked for element might easily disturb it.

Both teams are loaded with temperament, either is likely to go in and knock the hide off the ball or just as likely to miss anything in sight. That's where the question of world series nervousness enters in.

With cold-blooded money players like the Red Sox or Athletics this element never entered, but with clubs like the Giants and Sox it may cut a big figure.

Football Prospects

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 17.—With four of last year's lettermen around whom to build the eleven, Coach Yost of the University of Michigan hopes to develop a fairly strong team to represent the Maize and Blue on the gridiron this fall. The four 'varsity' players expected to be in the ranks are R. F. Weske, C. M. Sparks, W. L. Peach and E. E. Weiman.

Four of last year's reserve squad and six members of the freshman eleven are expected to return to school. F. A. Willard, J. H. Sharpe, J. O. Goodsell and S. V. Eggert are the reserves.

Whether "Brute" Pontius, who assisted the coaching staff last year, will help develop this year's eleven is uncertain. Pontius received a military appointment in the National army, but recently suffered a severe injury. Elmer Mitchell, coach of the freshmen eleven will, however, assist on the coaching staff this year.

Only two of Michigan's games this fall are to be played away from home. These are the contest November 17 with the University of Pennsylvania, which will be played at Philadelphia, and the game with the Northwestern University, scheduled for November 24, at Evanston, Ill.

Kansas City, Sept. 17.—With Nebraska pre-season favorite The Missouri Valley conference football situation will be practically unchanged from the close last season. Kansas being the only weak team. All of the remaining schools in the conference have lost a number of men by enlistments and by the officers' training camps, but the number lost by each school so nearly corresponds that it gives each an almost even break.

Nebraskans, one of the heaviest schedules of recent years including University of Iowa, Notre Dame and Michigan, and ending the season by playing Syracuse University on Thanksgiving Day at Lincoln. The Cornhusker schedule includes only two of the Missouri Valley teams, Missouri and Kansas, the former playing at Lincoln for the first time since 1911.

back; Dobson, half back; and Outapalik, lineman. With this staunch nucleus, Coach Stewart is expected to build up another machine such as the school has been noted for in recent years.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 17.—Despite the inroads on athletes made by the war, prospects for a successful football season at the University of Iowa are declared to be promising. Coach Howard Jones is hard at work getting a line on gridiron timber available.

One thing that has sent Hawkeye hopes sky-rocketing is the promised return of Captain-elect Davis, after reports that he would not be back to pilot the team. Davis tied the drop kicking record of the country last year, and Iowans are expecting his trusty right toe to aid materially in landing victories this season.

Then there are Jenkins, who made the longest run last year for the Iowans, and Guido Wyland, another veteran, reported ready to don the moleskins, while Reid, 1916 end, may be back. Elder is again eligible; Kelly and Hanselman, guards of last season, are good prospects, and it is likely Van Pelt will turn out for full-back again.

Greenwood, Hamilton, Brown and McNichols, freshmen last year are within the range of first string material, which includes several other 1916 freshmen and former varsity performers of no mean ability.

Wholesale shifting of old men to new positions is looked for, and Coach Jones is busy planning an attack which for surprises is expected to shake the tactics of the shell ratted battlefields of Europe.

DIAMOND NOTES

Neale of the Reds is now hitting the 300 class.

Umpires probably would like to have close decision included in peace terms.

Imagine nine men trying to play the kind of baseball that Ty Cobb would recommend.

Bernie Boland, Detroit pitcher, has set back the New York Yankees eight times in a row.

When the war is over they can bring the Kaiser over and make him president of the National League.

Seventy million dollars is invested in trapshooting in America, and the sport is following the flag.

Johnny Evers is about through. The Phils may get some good work from him, but it is doubtful.

A team composed of men like Heinie Zimmerman and Johnny Evers would fill any park in the country.

A scarcity of base hits and winning tallies takes its place alongside the shortage of beans in Boston.

Jake Fournier, former White Sox first baseman, is setting the Coast league afire with his batting.

Mann gets around $6,000 as an outfielder with the Cubs. On his army job he will draw down $2,000.

The Cubs have a fine young catcher in "Pickles" Dillhoefer, who is sharing the backstopping with Art Wilson.

Barney Dreyfuss says he would like to sell his Pirates. Connie Mack might like to sell his pennant chances.

With all that McGraw must have taken the spirit out of Heinie Zimmerman, who has ceased to nag the umpires.

Jack Barry says he was hit 23 times by pitched balls last season, but doesn't believe in the beanball. Jack's optimism is admirable, anyway.

Paddy Livingstone once refused to report to the Indians and Connie Mack made him a member of his world's champions. He refused to report to the Brewers and they made him manager.

SPORT GOSSIP

Chicago, Sept. 17.—Tris Speaker, the 1916 batting champion, is making a desperate drive to finish second to Ty Cobb for American league batting honors. Averages released today show the Cleveland star back in second place with an average of .553, with Sisler of St. Louis, who held the spot a week ago, six points behind him. The averages include games of Wednesday.

Dressen, the St. Paul first baseman, eclipsed the century mark in scoring, having counted 106 times in 247 games. He also boosted his stolen base record to fifty-four. Becker of Kansas City drove out two more home runs, bringing his total up to fifteen. As the season closes next Wednesday, Brookie of Indianapolis may lose the lead in sacrifice hitting as he is out of the game because of injuries. He has made 37 sacrifice blows, while McCarthy of Columbus is pressing him with thirty-five.

Kansas City regained command in team batting with an average of .265.

Leading batters who have participated in half or more of their clubs games: Demmitt, Columbus 321; Kirke, Louisville 319; Becker, Kansas City 315; Altizer, Minneapolis 313; Anderson, Milwaukee 310; Glenn, St. Paul 295; Dressen, St. Paul 294; Massev, Minneapolis 290; Riggert, St. Paul 289.

Leading batters who have played in half their clubs games: Cobb, Detroit 374; Speaker, Cleveland 353; Sisler, St. Louis 347; Felsch, Chicago 314; Veach, Detroit 306; Chapman, Cleveland 306; Lewis, Boston 305; Melunis, Philadelphia 302; Harris, Cleveland 301; Bodie, Philadelphia 300; Jackson, Chicago 297.

Rousch of Cincinnati widened the gap between himself and Hornsby, the St. Louis shortstop, for the batting lead in the National league, averages including games of Wednesday giving Rousch an average of .345—nineteen points ahead of his rival.

There were no changes among leaders in other offensive departments of the game. Carey of Pittsburgh added another stolen base to his total, bringing it up to forty-one, and Burns of New York stretched his mark in scoring to 93. Cravath of Philadelphia drove out another home run giving him a total of 12. Deal of Chicago is showing the way to sacrifice hitters with 28.

Cincinnati clung to team batting honors with an average of .255. Leading batters who have played in half or more of their clubs games: Rousch, Cincinnati 345; Hornsby, St. Louis 326; Groh, Cincinnati 308; Kauff, New York 307; Burns, New York 299; Cruise, St. Louis 299; Wheat, Brooklyn

SPORT CHATTER

One thing that makes the end of the baseball season regrettable is that a lot of bunn fighters who can't get their names in print during the summer will begin to break into the sport page.

Graney stole home—the other day in Detroit. Stealing Cubs stuff right in his own home town.

The price of beer has not advanced but probably will with the opening of the bowling season.

It's lamentable the way Walter Johnson has gone back. He allowed Boston two hits the other day.

TO AID FAMILIES OF U. S. FIGHTERS

Red Cross Undertakes to Care for the Dependents of Soldiers and Sailors.

PREPARE FOR A LARGE TASK

"Not Work of Charity, but Most Sacred Duty to See That They Lack for No Comfort," Says Director Lies.

By CHARLES LEE BRYSON.
Chicago.—Many an American soldier and sailor will fight with infinitely stronger spirit in this war for the knowledge that the American Red Cross is standing firm between those he leaves at home, and the grim specter of want. For the announcement has gone forth from Washington that the families of fighting men are to be under the protection of the great humanitarian arm of the government.

The whole world knows of the work the Red Cross has done in caring for the sick and wounded in war, relieving the distress of the victims of fire and flood, earthquake, famine and tornado in civil disaster, and organizing base hospitals for the army and navy. But few realize that while all this was being done, preparation was under way to look after the loved ones whom the fighting men will leave at home.

When the United States troops were at the Mexican border the Red Cross found it necessary to make provision for the families of many Guardsmen who had left dependents at home. This made plain what must be done in case an army of a million men should be called abroad, and with characteristic Red Cross forwardness a plan was at once formulated. So far as possible, the war department will choose men who have no dependents; but in spite of everything many a married man, many a son whose mother depends on him, and many others to whom relatives look for support, will go to the front. It is these who are left behind that will be watched over by the Red Cross.

Department of Family Relief.
To safeguard those who may need our care, the Red Cross has established, under the director general of civilian relief, a new department called that of family relief. It has called to the head of this department Eugene T. Lies, for many years general superintendent of the United Charities of Chicago, a man of wide experience and ripe judgment.

Mr. Lies was one of those who attended a conference of national and division officers of the Red Cross called at Chicago by John J. O'Connor, director of the central division, and at this conference Mr. Lies outlined his policy. Later, at the National Conference of Charities at Pittsburgh, Mr. Lies enlarged upon this subject. He made it very plain that it is a labor of love, and in no sense of charity, that the Red Cross has undertaken.

"We must remember," said Mr. Lies, "that there is not the faintest shadow of 'charity' in its usual meaning, attached to this work we are undertaking. If there is want among the families of our soldiers and sailors, it is not because they have been idle or wasteful, or imprudent, or that they have been in anywise to blame. Rather it is because they have done the finest and the noblest thing possible, and have given to their country those to whom they have looked for support and protection.

"We go to them, not as doing them a charity, but as expressing our gratitude to them for what they have done—as a duty we owe to those whom they have given to fight our battles. Looking at it in this light, we can see how little we can afford to permit any one of these to suffer because of the noble thing they have done."

Task a Big One.
The officers of the Red Cross have shown a large grasp of the situation. They realize the task that will be theirs. This is shown in a part of Mr. Lies' Pittsburgh talk, in which he said that very soon there will be 300,000 National Guardsmen in the field, and that "by January 1 next it is altogether possible that there will be under arms about 2,500,000 men in all branches of the service."

"We must prepare for a large task, to be executed through the civilian relief committee of the various Red Cross chapters. These committees should have carefully chosen members, some, at least, of whom have experience in social work."

It is not merely as a feeding and clothing agency that the Red Cross proposes to act toward these dependents, as Mr. Lies points out, but as a sort of "next friend" in all troubles such as illness, insurance, difficulties with landlords, illness, accident and the moral welfare of children.

"We would show ourselves unfit to enjoy the blessings of democracy," says Mr. Lies, "if, while sending our soldiers to the front to fight the enemy, we permitted their families at home to fight want, disease, and moral dangers alone. It would look like wilful punishment for the sacrifices made by them."

"Only by getting close to them through friendly visitation, sympathetic inquiry, neighborliness and intelligent interpretation of home conditions, can untoward factors be discovered. The Red Cross is in the field to do just this kind of service in addition to supplementary relief work, and it wants to do it as thoroughly as possible."

It is in this spirit, then, that the Red Cross is approaching the task of protecting the dependents left behind by the fighting men. Backed by the American people, there is no room for doubt as to how it will perform this task.

CALL BRITISH TARS "LIMEYS"
American Bluejackets in European Waters Have Nickname for Everything They See.
London.—American bluejackets on duty in European waters have a nickname of their own for England's sailors and soldiers. They call them "limeys," the individual being known as a "limey." The American sailor men apply the designation to all English fighters just as the British refer to their soldiers as "Tommyes."

The sailor from the United States has his nickname for nearly everything he sees. Bluejackets who had served in the near and far East first started calling British sailors and soldiers "limey juiceers," because of their fondness for fruit juice and charged water.

Now the designation has been shortened down and everything British is "limey." British soldiers and sailors are known as "limey clubs," and British-brewed lager beer is commonly spoken of as "limey beer."

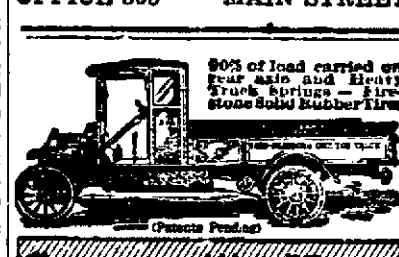

Aged Mother of Twenty-Eight.
Chino, Cal.—Mrs. Paul Aguilar who has been married 38 years, recently gave birth to her twenty-eighth child, a boy. Mrs. Aguilar, who is fifty-three years old, was married when she was fifteen. She has had three sets of twins, and all but two of the children are living.

M'LEAN COUNTY'S SOLDIERS TO BE HONORED TUESDAY

Washburn, N. D., Sept. 17.—Music by the Second regiment band of Harvey, patriotic addresses by Dr. E. P. Quain, major and founder of North Dakota's first Red Cross unit, at 12:30 mark. Gen. E. A. Williams and by former Associate Justice E. T. Burke of Bismarck and Col. Frank White of the Second will feature a farewell demonstration in which all of McLean county will unite here Tuesday in honor of its soldier boys.

RAILWAYS OBJECT TO GIVING ELGIN CHANCE TO TRANSFER FREIGHT

Mandamus Railway Commission to Show Cause Why Connection Should Be Made

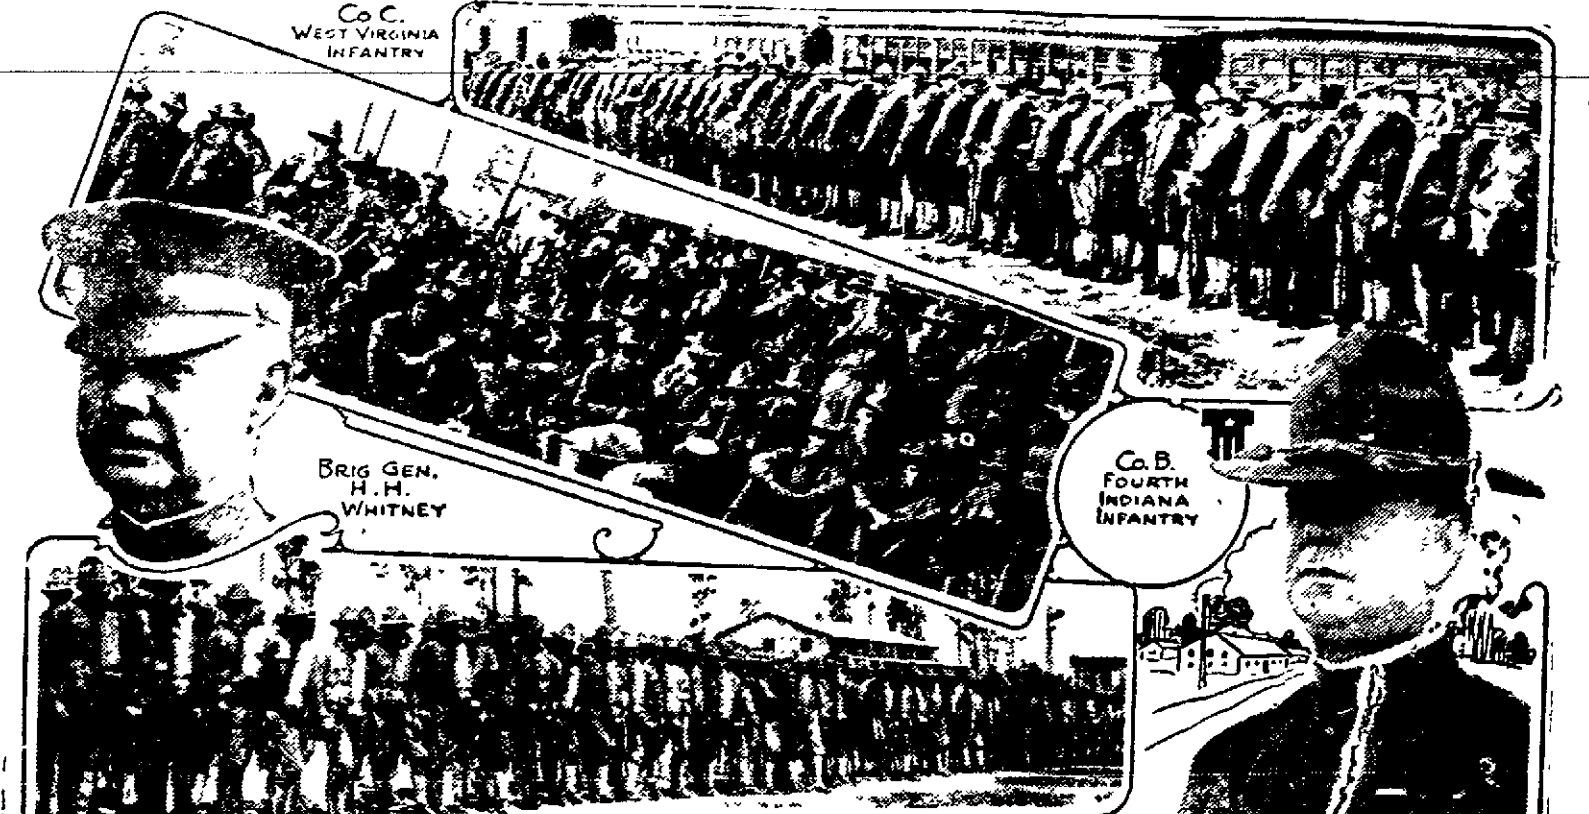

Carson, N. D., Sept. 17.—Col. J. N. Steen, state's attorney for Grant county, has been called to Fargo on Oct. 1 to appear in a chancery action brought by the Northern Pacific and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul against the board of railway commissioners, the attorney general and the state's attorney of Grant to show cause why these railway companies should be compelled to install a transfer track at Elgin. Although the two lines run within a few feet of one another at Elgin, no transfer facilities have been provided there, and shipments for Milwaukee line points have been taken on to Mott and transfer made there. This practice has added to the freight rates which good sized towns like Leith, Raleigh and Shields have had to pay on commodities shipped from Bismarck, and it has discriminated more or less, it is claimed, against Mandan and Bismarck wholesale houses in favor of those of Aberdeen.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN FROM THREE STATES NOW HAPPY IN CAMP AT HATTIESBURG

The big men who will have charge of the 30,000 soldiers of Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia who are beginning to arrive at Camp Shelby, Hattiesburg, Miss., are now on the camp site. The high officers are headed by that strict disciplinarian and natural leader of men, Maj. Gen. W. H. Sage, who is showing remarkable energy and foresight in the final preparations for the coming of the Guardsmen from three states. Maj. Gen. Sage is a New York man and was graduated from West Point. He was three times sent to the Philippines, and is a seasoned veteran. He was with the regulars on the Mexican border. Brig. Gen. Roger D. Williams, of Kentucky; E. M. Lewis, of Indiana, say so, either. They are having a small investment in real, honest-to-goodness stockyards. The 1st military unit to reach Camp Shelby was from Nashville, Ind.; the second from Bowling Green, Ky.; and the third from West Virginia. All of the men seem highly pleased with conditions in general and the camp site in particular. Many are fan boosters for this section of Mississippi, an ideal agricultural region.

SCOTT LOSES BIG MONEY TO SERVE WITH U. S. ARMY

Among those mentioned in the athletic hall of fame after this war is over will be Dale Valley Jim Scott who declared himself out of a chance to be in on the world series money when he quit the White Sox to join Uncle Sam's troops in training. Although Jim hasn't been going well this year and probably would have not pitched in the big series, he would have been in on a cut of the big money when the division was made. Instead he chose to join Uncle Sam.

Marmarth Rancher Bets $1000 He Can Stick on Camp Crook Outlaw Nag

Marmarth, N. D., Sept. 17.—Frank Gore, a common, every day Marmarth rancher, (who doesn't set himself up as a broncho buster, has accepted the challenge of Camp Crook, S. D., offering a pot of money to anyone who can stay on the back of their famous outlaw horse, Tipperary, and has offered to put up $1,000 or any sum above that amount that either he or his brother, Scott, can ride the man killer to death Harding county, in which Camp Crook is located, had offered to stake any sum up to $500 on the horse. It is expected, however, that the good sports in that vicinity will cover Gore's thousand, and an interesting exhibition is looked forward to when the ropes are taken off Tipperary and the fans cry, "Let 'er buck." Scott Gore, in particular, has friends in the Marmarth country who are willing to stake everything they have on his ability to ride anything that wear hair and comes to earth occasionally.

BUILDING BIG DAM Northern Pacific Looks to Pure River Water for Supply

Dickinson, N. D., Sept. 17.—The Northern Pacific has begun work on a huge dam across the Heart river which is to supply 500,000 gallons of water daily for the local shops and roundhouse. Wells dug some time ago supplied more than 100 gallons of water per minute, but the water was found to contain alkali which damaged the boilers, and the Heart is believed a source of better supply.

Oh, Hoover! FISH ARE MILKING COWS IN ILLINOIS

Springvale, Ill., Sept. 17. Dairymen near here have asked the state to permit seining Elk creek for fish, following the discovery that big-mouth bass have been milking the cows when they go into the water to drink. The discovery was made by Sammy Baird, 11, while watching his father's herd pastured two miles north of town. Dairymen had been noting losses in their milk supplies and blamed tramps. Men and boys were hired to guard the herds. The losses did not stop. Several cowherds were discharged on suspicion. Young Baird Sunday evening no ticed a commotion in the water and saw two large bass engaged in a furious battle. One was a large-mouth bass and the other small-mouth. The small-mouth fish was driven off and Baird watched the other fish swim leisurely up to a cow and begin milking it. Investigation showed several other fish similarly engaged. Baird drove the cows from the water and reported. The next day several dairymen watched the operation. The milking always followed a battle between large and small mouth bass. Dairymen believe the small-mouths were doing all the others' milking advantage. A community party is planned to permit to seine the stream is granted.

TO RAISE $1,000,000 FOR CAMP LIBRARIES

Washington, D. C., Sept. 17.—The library war council of America wants $1,000,000 to supply our boys in the camps and on ships with good reading matter. Harold Braddock of Montclair, N. J., in charge of the campaign for this fund, is urging American citizens to contribute. Money, rather than old books, is wanted—to erect library buildings, ship books and furnish a trained library squad in each camp. The library war council, appointed by Secretary of War Baker, is under the leadership of Frank A. Vanderlip, famous banker, and co-operation to raise the money is promised by the churches, libraries and leading publishers throughout the country.

WITH THE EDITORS

ENLIGHTENMENT. (New York Times.) Maine, it seems, wasn't sufficiently "enlightened" to vote for woman suffrage in New York state. (Himself) is supposed to have dissipated some of the darkness of the electorate which gave that 188,000 "anti" majority in 1915. The second campaign will have better luck. Just as it did in Ohio, doubtless. Unenlightened Ohio beat woman suffrage in 1912 by a majority of 97,000. In 1914, enlightened Ohio beat woman suffrage by 182,000. Spread the light! The light is spreading. The illumination is brilliant already. In this more radiantly the suffragist sense of public duty, of patriotism, of the proportionate values of public needs and civic responsibilities than the statement of an illustrious feminist to the campaign conference of the New York State Woman Suffrage party at Saratoga the other day: You have been splendidly organized, and through that organization have been able to do unparalleled work for the nation since war came. But let me tell you now that, for the next two months, nothing you can possibly do for the government will be equal in value to the work you do to carry this state for equal suffrage next November. The martyrs of Washington are enlightening. Miss Rankin is enlightening. The Woman's Peace Party is enlightening. Enlightening are the suffragists sure to turn up in the polyonymous societies and councils and conferences and leagues and unions to oppose conscription and the war—and promote German peace. Enlightening is the plan of the New York socialists, proposed more than two months ago, for nightly outdoor suffrage meetings. The socialists are particularly eager to spread the "coming of democracy for women," for, as The New York Call, a socialist organ, says for our enlightenment, "virtually every active socialist woman is a pacifist." There is enlightenment in the congratulations of the Massachusetts socialist convention to the Washington picketers. There is enlightenment in the strength and the activities of the I. W. W. in Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Washington, states blessed with woman suffrage, and socialism is strong in those states. The fight for woman suffrage "must be won," says The New York Call. There is no end of enlightenment.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 17.—Army officers and state authorities failed to free middle western cantonments from immoral conditions so Mrs. Lee Shippey of Higginsville, Mo., went ahead and did it. The result is, at these camps the boys in training are safe from immoral influences. For her work the state governors have thanked Mrs. Shippey publicly.
